Watch for your DCHC 2017 profiles & posts to be shared with the Health Communication Hub

Promote your research

Share your presentations & posters on Health Hubs and receive global interprofessional input and visibility.

Translate your research

It shouldn't take 17 years to go from bench to bedside! Leverage Hubs to disseminate your knowledge to the public.

Create a 'Live' show

Increase your online presence and influence. In posts, display shows (Aircasts), archive them & ask for comments.

Teach your students

Use Hubs for hands-on training in how to translate science and promote best practices to the public.

Share your Knowledge …

Gary Kreps, our Lead Advisor, is assisting in pioneering the Open Network (ON) of Health Hubs. The Health Communication Hub is the first of its kind for a discipline and the Insomnia Hub is the first Hub for a condition (insomnia.onair.cc).

These knowledge Hubs are co-created & curated by members of the non-profit Open Network Alliance (ONA). Together, we openly promote evidence-based knowledge, for the greater health for all.

'Open' means all content is under the Creative Commons-Non Commercial (CC-NC) license.

… Have influence in health

CC-NC means we permit others to share our work (with attribution), but not earn money from it.

DCHC is the vanguard ONA member group. You can be an Author, Curator, Aircaster, or even a Hub manager. No expertise in technology is needed.

If your group (e.g., professional society, university department, research lab, course) would like to curate or launch a Health Knowledge Hub, contact Meredith at DrCary@mac.com.
